INTRODUCTION

What is Urban Birding?

URBAN BIRDING is the denomination of the tourism product that we have created in Extremadura focused on one of our most emblematic birds, the lesser kestrel.

URBAN BIRDING, as the visitor will see, looking at this catalogue, is a tourism product that brings together different businesses across the region: official tourism guides, birding and nature guides, businesses specialising in activities, photography and hides, accommodation, restaurants and other food outlets, art studios, drawing and painting workshops. Its objective is to offer visitors diversity and quality.

URBAN BIRDING brings together a wide variety of activities and experiences for tourists, offering the visitor opportunities to observe, enjoy and learn about lesser kestrels in their urban habitats and surrounding areas. And all of this combined with the other tourism resources that Extremadura can offer such as its important and distinguished historic and artistic heritage, its much-envied nature and the quality of its gastronomic products. And, of course, the warmth, kindness and hospitality of its people.

This is just the start of your URBAN BIRDING adventure.

What are you waiting for? Live it!

More than 60 experiences for tourists with one common denominator: the lesser kestrel

Why has Urban Birding been created?

The URBAN BIRDING project is established as an opportunity for tourists to enjoy a double attraction that Extremadura offers:

01 To see the second smallest falcon in the world that is nesting in colonies in urban centres.

02 To visit the urban SPAs. Extremadura is the only region in the world in which, with the objective of protecting the populations of lesser kestrels, has declared SPAs (Special Protection Area for birds) in the centres of towns and villages because of the presence of this bird, and has defined the areas when they live.

URBAN BIRDING is designed as a product that brings together the two principal strategic tourism resources in the Extremaduran region: birds, for which our region is nationally and internationally recognised, and the wide and rich heritage, given World Heritage status in the case of Cáceres and recognised historic and artistic centres in other towns.

Its objective is to offer tourists diversity and quality.

Who is involved?

The URBAN BIRDING product is formed by three types of members:

01

Businesses, who have designed, prepared and offer the different activities and experiences in which the lesser kestrel is the protagonist, and are listed in this catalogue.

02

Promoters, who include the administration, institutions, organisations or entities which do not offer activities directly (except in a few cases). Their role is to be the agents who promote, facilitate and communicate the product.

03

Supporters, individuals or collectives (associations) that build awareness about the project.

Urban Birding in the LIFE ZEPAURBAN project

Logo 'Urban Birding'

The URBAN BIRIDNG tourism product is created within the framework of action E9 of the LIFE ZEPAURBAN project (LIFE15 NAT/ES/001016). This is a project financed by the European Union with the objective to guarantee, in the long term, the conservation of the lesser kestrel. To this end, it is working on the preservation and management of the lesser kestrel breeding colonies in urban SPAs, the conservation of foraging habitats – cereal steppes and extensive rain-fed farming – and increasing the awareness in the population, especially people living near breeding colonies and the owners or users of the buildings in which the colonies occur.

Incorporating the component of tourism in the project involves, in part, contributing to the knowledge and awareness of visitors about such a significant species and about its decline. It is also about ensuring that the lesser kestrel can also be seen, by the local people, businesses and others in the area, as something that generates income and economic development for the zones in which it is present.

In this way, involving the local people and capturing the interest and attention of visitors, all of us can play a role in ensuring that the lesser kestrel (mical, ansarillo, xoriguer petit, lagarteiro... are some of its local names) will continue flying in the skies above our towns and villages.

Oleosetin

→ DESCRIPTION

The manzanilla olive of Cáceres is one of the gastronomic riches on offer. A variety that is grown in areas that are also foraging habitats of lesser kestrels. For this reason, we recommend to those visiting Cáceres that, after a tour around the historic centre, during which one can see the colonies of lesser kestrels, take the opportunity to discover the other little jewel: the manzanilla cacereña. We invite you to visit the Oleoteca of Cáceres. There you can taste olive oils, accompanied by tapas and we can show you the processes of oil extraction and methods of production.

Pastelería Canela

Take a pause for something sweet during a visit to Jerez de los Caballeros by dropping in to this working pastry shop which offers trays of typical homemade wine bagels, personalised by images of lesser kestrels. It is very original to bring together this traditional pastry with an image of the small urban raptor, which can be seen in the neighbouring Plaza de España, whilst admiring the impressive tower of the church of San Miguel. And if we have a sweet tooth, we can also obtain here the star sweet of the locality, the Turkish bun, the traditional recipe for which was inherited from the Arabs, and dates from 1700.

Lesser Kestrel Meeting

Mice +

→ DESCRIPTION

Design and organisation of bespoke experiences for tourists, on the theme of the presence of lesser kestrels in the urban SPAs of Extremadura, for groups and associations.

The experiences are designed based on the preferences and specific needs of each group. Bird-focused activities are offered, especially on the lesser kestrel. Other activities on culture and gastronomy are offered the tourist, to get a wide appreciation of the destination. In this way, the participants of a Lesser Kestrel Meeting will have the opportunity of knowing not just the locality but also the lesser kestrel, in an active way, discovering and enjoying each of the proposed activities. The personalised experiences that are designed will be a journey in which the group and each of the participants will be protagonists.

Trujillo, its medieval cemeteries and the birds that live in them

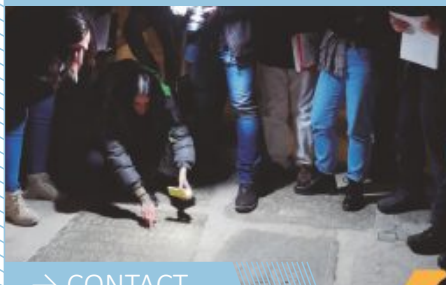

Adalberti

→ DESCRIPTION

Never has there been such a special visit in Trujillo. We will take you by the hand on a journey in time that you will never forget, to your ancestors and their eternal abodes. The town's two most important and impressive cemeteries are visited in chronological order: the Church of Santa María la Mayor (burial site of illustrious medieval personalities) and the Vera Cruz cemetery. The walk ends with an interpretation of the botanical symbolism that the different plant species that comprise the garden of peace have, whilst enjoying the identification of the birds that through their songs give life to this place.

The visit ends with a panoramic view from the new walk along the wall from which one can see all the nature that inhabits the Vera Cruz cemetery, accompanied by a delicious take-away tea.

Cerni, the winged guardian of the monastery of Guadalupe

Natural

Activity aimed at primary school children, with contents and activities adapted for age groups. It has two parts:

- 01 A short, 30 minutes, walk to the most emblematic places in the historic centre of Guadalupe in the surroundings of the Monastery. We explain how the monks wisely used the natural resources around the town: water, plants, wood, stone....
- 02 We will go to the Parque de la Constitución where we can see one of the lesser kestrel nests situated in a high part of one of the Monastery towers. We will also see pigeons, spotless starlings, swifts, swallows and martins....

Using our own information sheets and posters, the children will explore the biological cycle of the lesser kestrel, its habits, its preferred food, its habitat, courtship, its appearance and, of course, its importance as a protected species.

We will complete the activity by watching the colony of lesser kestrels in the Monastery of Guadalupe, using a telescope and binoculars.

Guardians of the olive grove

Oleosetin

→ DESCRIPTION

The experience is about seeing the habitat of the lesser kestrel “in situ” in our land, a manzanilla olive grove in the mountains in the north of Extremadura that provides cover and food for this unique bird. You will see the peculiarities of the rural ecosystem and learn about the culture of the olive and Extra Virgin Olive Oil as a key part of its natural history and life cycle. Here human beings and lesser kestrels live side-by-side as an example of coexistence between both species from which both draw benefits and about which we want to value and share with our visitors.

Lesser kestrel ...in 6 facts

SEASONALITY

It is with us between February and July, then it gathers in the countryside prior to its great migration, at the start of September.

THE DIET OF THE LESSER KESTREL

It feeds mainly on medium-sized invertebrates (grasshoppers, crickets, beetles, centipedes) but also can capture small rodents (voles, mice) and reptiles (lizards).

MAIN THREATS

Disturbance during breeding

Competition for nest sites

Loss of nest sites

Reduction in food availability

DISTRIBUTION

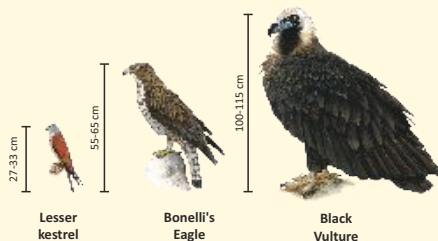

It is a summer visitor. At the end of July, once breeding has finished, it starts a long journey towards the central and southern Africa.

SIZE OF LESSER KESTREL

The lesser kestrel (Falco naumanni) is the smallest diurnal raptor that breeds in the Iberian Peninsula.

URBAN Spas in Extremadura

Of the 21 SPAs declared because of the presence of lesser kestrels, in those covered by LIFE ZEPA URBAN, URBAN BIRDING, the tourist product, is established in Cáceres, Jerez, Plasencia, Trujillo and Zafra, thanks to the resources, businesses and existing presence of tourists.

URBAN BIRDING HAS STARTED AS A PILOT IN 5 PLACES IN EXTREMADURA.

One of the key characteristics of the LIFE projects is its replicability and the transfer of results.

A work methodology has been designed so that tomorrow, whatever place that is interested can start up this product independently.

CLUB BIRDING IN EXTREMADURA

To ensure that those choosing Extremadura for their birding holidays have the most rewarding experience, the Birding in Extremadura Club has been formed to help the visitor. By being able to access the best birding services (accommodation, guides, information centres etc) based in Extremadura, birdwatchers from around the world can now plan their holidays much more easily, finding those services that best suit their requirements and expectations.

The Birding in Extremadura Club is a voluntary group, promoted by the Extremadura Tourism Directorate, which brings together private and public sector interests to further develop birdwatching tourism throughout the region.

The Club:

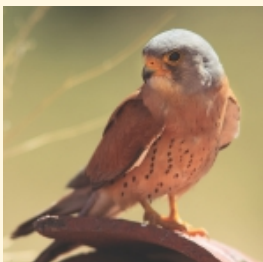

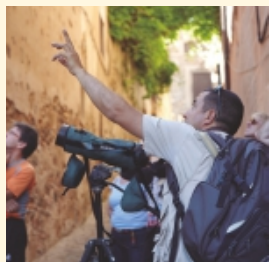

- Brings together the best birding services in Extremadura, based on rigorously applied criteria.
- Creates an alliance to manage and widely promote birding tourism services based in Extremadura.
- Creates easier access to high quality services for those planning to visit Extremadura.

Follow us on:

Download the app Birding in Extremadura:

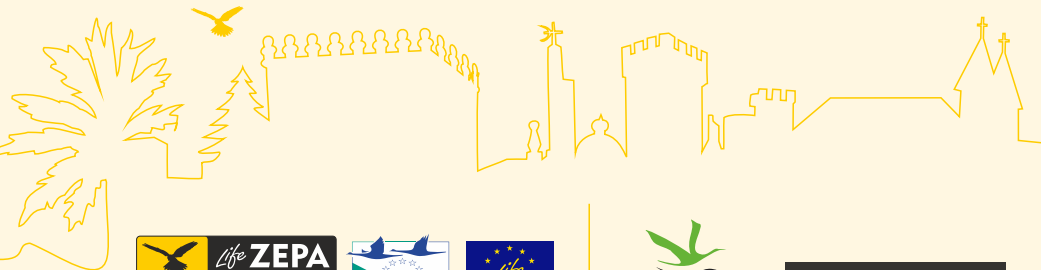

URBAN BIRDING is the denomination of the tourism product that we have created in Extremadura about lesser kestrels.

URBAN BIRDING brings together a wide variety of activities and experiences for tourists, offering the visitor opportunities to observe, enjoy and learn about lesser kestrels in their urban habitats and surrounding areas. And all of this combined with the other tourism resources that Extremadura can offer such as its important and distinguished historic and artistic heritage, its much-envied nature and the quality of its gastronomic products. And, of course, the warmth, kindness and hospitality of its people.

This is just the start of your URBAN BIRDING adventure.
