INTRODUCTION

More than 60 tourism experiences with a common denominator: the lesser kestrel

What is Urban Birding?

URBAN BIRDING is the name of the tourism product we have created in Extremadura around one of its most peculiar birds, the lesser kestrel.

URBAN BIRDING, as travellers who read this catalogue will see, is a tourism product that brings together different companies in the region: official, ornithological and nature tourist guides, activity, photography and hunting companies, accommodation, restaurants and gastronomic establishments, as well as art studios and drawing and painting workshops. Its aim is to present visitors with a diverse and quality tourism offer.

To do this, URBAN BIRDING brings together a wide variety of tourism activities and experiences that help travellers learn, enjoy and watch lesser kestrels in their urban habitats and the species' nearby habitats. All this combined with other tourism resources that Extremadura offers tourists, such as its historic-artistic heritage, its enviable nature, and the quality of its gastronomic products. As well as, of course, the warmth, friendliness and hospitality of its people.

This is just the start of your URBAN BIRDING adventure.

Why was Urban Birding created?

The URBAN BIRDING product is a tourism opportunity for travellers to enjoy the dual peculiarity offered by Extremadura:

- 01 View and watch the second smallest falcon in the world that nests colonially in urban centres.
- 02 Visit the urban SPA. Extremadura is the only region in the world in which an SPA has been declared within urbanised towns and cities with the aim of protecting the lesser kestrel populations in these areas, with the locations of their habitats clearly defined.

URBAN BIRDING is a product that combines two of the Extremadura region's main strategic tourism resources: the ornithological resource, of which our region is a national and international benchmark, and the extensive, rich heritage declared a World Heritage Site in the case of Cáceres and historic-artistic sites in the other towns.

Who is part of it?

The URBAN BIRDING product is made up of three types of members:

- 01 Companies, which are responsible for designing, organising and providing the different activities and experiences starring the lesser kestrel, which are detailed in this catalogue.
- 02 Facilitators/dynamisers, which are administrations, institutions, bodies and entities that do not directly offer activities (with exceptions). Their role is that of drivers, promoters, informers and dynamisers of the product.
- 03 Opinion leaders, either individual or collective agents (associations) who work to provide information on the product.

The URBAN BIRDING tourism product is created as part of action E9 under the LIFE ZEPAURBAN project (LIFE15 NAT/ES/001016). It is a project funded by the European Union, with the aim of guaranteeing the long term conservation of the lesser kestrel. To do this, work is being done on the conservation and management of lesser kestrel breeding colonies in urban SPA, preserving feeding habitats - cereal-producing steppes and extensive dry-farmed crops - and raising the awareness of the population, especially people closest to their breeding colonies and the owners or users of the buildings where they nest. By incorporating the tourism aspect into the project, it is intended, on the one hand, contributing to raising travellers' awareness and increasing their knowledge about this highly significant species that is in notable decline. On the other hand, the aim is for the lesser kestrel to be seen by the local population, companies and agents in the territory as an element that can generate income and economic development for the areas in which it is present. In this way, by achieving the engagement of the local population and capturing the interest and attention of travellers like you, who are reading this, together we will take a step towards ensuring that the lesser kestrel (mical, ansarillo, xoriguer petit, lagarteiro etc.; some of the names it is given) continues to sail the skies of our towns and cities.

→ DESCRIPTION

Guided tour to Cáceres, which will alternate the experience of getting to know the city's history and heritage with the bird watching opportunities that present during the tour: swifts, swallows, house martins, storks and the star, the lesser kestrel. If you are lucky, you will also be able to see the black or griffon vulture, kites and the booted eagle... we will talk about the lesser kestrel's habitat and conservation issues, and watch its nests scattered throughout the historic city. As this bird is easy to observe it is very easy to get to know for the whole family.

Trujillo, its medieval cemeteries and the birds that inhabit them

Adalberti

→ DESCRIPTION

Never before has a visit to Trujillo been so special. We will take you by the hand of its ancestors and their eternal dwellings on a journey through time that you will never forget. The two most important and imposing cemeteries in the city are visited in a cultural tour through time: the Santa María la Mayor church (and its burials of illustrious medieval figures) and the Vera Cruz cemetery, the first medieval cemetery. The walk is rounded out by observing the botanical symbology that the different species in the cemetery garden contain, while also enjoying identifying the ornithological species that give life to this magical place with their song.

The tour ends with a panoramic view from the new parapet where all the nature that inhabits the Vera Cruz cemetery can be seen, while enjoying a delicious take away tea.

Cerni, the winged guardian of the Guadalupe monastery

Natural

Activity aimed at children at primary school, adapting the content and delivery to their ages. Covering two parts:

- 01 Small tour of around 30 minutes of the most iconic places in the historic centre of Guadalupe around the monastery. We explain how the monks wisely took advantage of the natural resources around the town: water, plants, wood, rocks etc.
- 02 We will visit Constitución park, from where we will observe one of the lesser kestrel nests located at the top of one of the towers of the monastery. We will also see doves, starlings, swifts, swallows, house martins etc.

Through educational cards and sheets that they will make, children will learn about the life cycle of the lesser kestrel, its habits, food tastes, habitat, courtship displays, morphological characteristics and, of course, its importance as a protected species.

We will finish the activity by observing the lesser kestrel colony in the monastery of Guadalupe with a terrestrial telescope and binoculars.

Activities and routes

The experience consists of getting to know the habitat of the lesser kestrel "in situ" here, the Cáceres manzanilla olive grove in the northern mountains of Extremadura that provide shelter and food for this unique bird. Getting to know the particularities of this rural ecosystem and learning about olive tree and extra virgin olive oil culture as a fundamental part of its history and way of life. This livelihood shared by man and the lesser kestrel is an example of coexistence between two species that benefits both; this is what we want to draw attention to and share with our visitors.

→ FUENTE DE CANTOS

Activities and routes

→ DESCRIPTION

Three towns in the south of Extremadura were fundamental to the life and career of the baroque painter, Francisco de Zurbarán: Fuente de Cantos, where he was born, Llerena, where he lived and Zafra, where he received professional commissions. These same towns now have an SPA in which to spot and follow the lesser kestrel and other urban birds. Our experience will bring together both resources to get to know, on the one hand, the painter's land, his museum-house, visitor centre and some of his works and, on the other, meet the bird of prey and enjoy it in the buildings where it is found.

Depending on the accommodation chosen, the itineraries will depart from Zafra or Llerena, in both cases going through the town of Fuente de Cantos. For groups such as associations or primary and secondary schools, see our website for different options for enjoying the experience.

Urban ZEPAs of Extremadura

URBAN BIRDING STARTS IN 5 TOWNS OF EXTREMADURA IN A PILOT WAY.

Of the 21 SPAs declared due to the presence of lesser kestrels in which the LIFE ZEPA URBAN project operates, the tourism product, URBAN BIRDING, is being implemented in Cáceres, Jerez, Plasencia, Trujillo and Zafra, due to the existing resources, businesses and flow of tourists

One of the most unique characteristics of the LIFE projects is their replicability and results transfer.

A work methodology has been designed so that tomorrow, any town interested can implement this product independently.

BIRDING IN EXTREMADURA CLUB

The Birding in Extremadura Club was created with the aim of helping visitors enjoy a satisfactory experience on their holidays, providing ornithology lovers who choose Extremadura with access to the best bird watching services: accommodation, guides, tourist information offices etc. Bird watchers from all around the world can now plan their holidays much more easily and find the services that best suit their needs and expectations.

The Birding in Extremadura Club is a voluntary group, promoted by the Extremadura Tourist Board, bringing together the interests of the private and public sectors to further develop ornithological tourism in the region.

The Club:

- Brings together the best bird watching services in Extremadura, with rigorously applied criteria.
- Creates a partnership to broadly manage and promote birdwatching tourism services in Extremadura.
- Creates easier access to high-quality services for people who want to visit Extremadura.

URBAN BIRDING is the name of the tourism product that we have created in Extremadura around the lesser kestrel.

To do this, URBAN BIRDING is bringing together a wide variety of tourism activities and experiences to help travellers learn, enjoy and watch lesser kestrels in their urban habitats and the species' nearby habitats. All this combined with the other tourism resources that Extremadura offers tourists, such as its significant and distinguished historic-artistic heritage, its enviable nature, and the quality of its gastronomic products. As well as, of course, the warmth, friendliness and hospitality of its people.

This is just the start of your URBAN BIRDING adventure.
